Prologue

Linda Barne, Early Morning Papers (Helms)

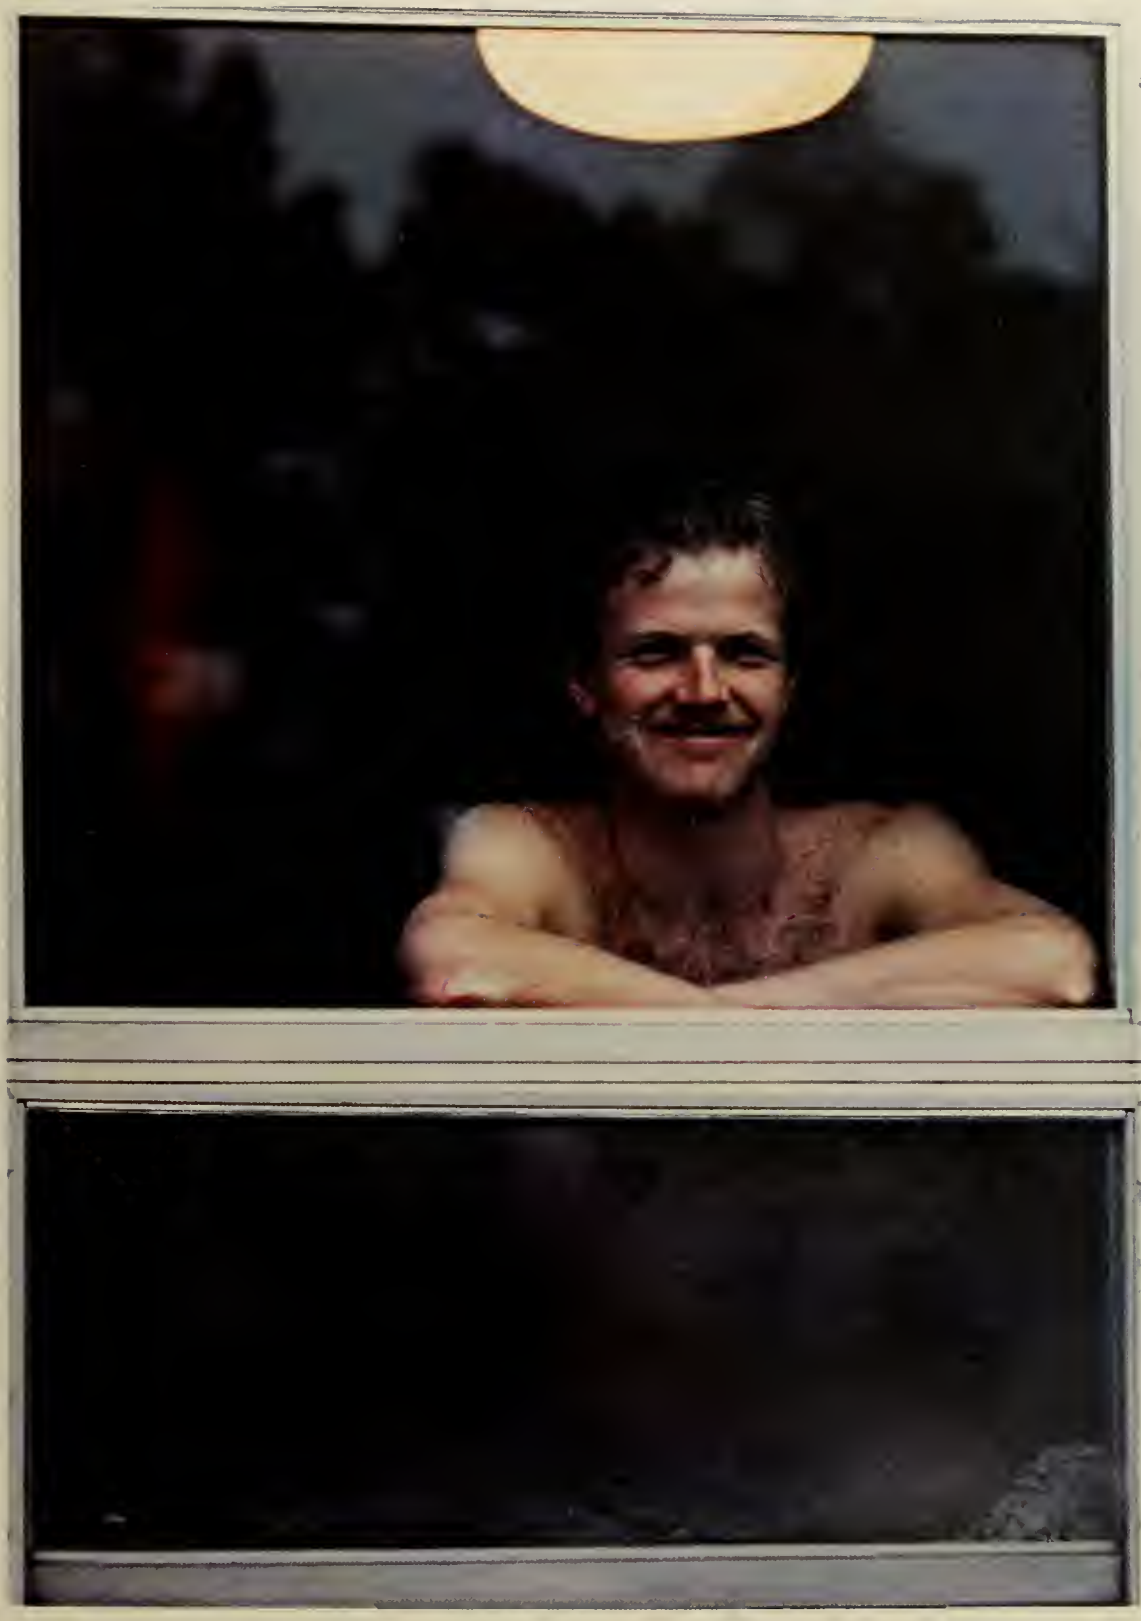

We are students, yes, but even more, we are James Madison University students. And that in itself sets us apart.

Like every college or university, we have an image, which is projected shamelessly to our community, to our peers at other schools — and to ourselves.

And we're proud of it. JMU is a school that's population has more than doubled in the past 12 years. Just last year, 10,275 applications were submitted to JMU for freshman or transfer admission. Of those, only 2,256 became part of our student body. And as we've grown in size — to 9,048 enrolled students — we've grown in style and spirit.

But not without some conflict. Our image is often projected to the public with majestic photos of our architectural figurehead, Wilson Hall. Come see us, however, and you will find our livelihood exists not in a building of business offices and records, but in the laid-back comfort of our campus center

It is here that we are most ourselves. We study, we talk among friends, we sleep casually on sofas Free to be as we like

It is here that many indications of our interests are exhibited Magazines at the information desk range from "Seventeen" to "Popular Computing," from "People" to "Sporting News" Newspapers scattered about are also diverse in title; JMU's The Breeze, The Washington Post, Richmond Times-Dispatch and USA Today are a few.

The "Union" is also JMU's prime premises for in-house analysis Scoping the student body — and it's bodies — is a rampant sport along rows of earth-toned sofas and chairs.

And let us not forget its purposes of necessity. A floor below the main level is the post office, where students occasionally receive greetings and goodies from home but more often get "air mail" deliveries. Students also check the ride board here, cash checks from "accommodating" VNB, and purchase doughnuts and other assorted paraphernalia from clubs. Traffic flow is often like a D.C. interstate during peak hours: slow and jammed with groups that find it essential to stop and chat in the heaviest lanes of movement.

On the top floor of the campus center is Duke's Grill. Fast food and an informal alternative to the dining hall make this another leading center for socializing. A jukebox keeps us in tune with the latest hits, while tables and booths, always packed during meal hours, give us room to squeeze a relaxed few minutes from our schedules.

Still, to take a quick jaunt through the campous center only hints at what characterizes a JMU student. One still wouldn't know who we are, where we come from, or what our purpose is at this mid-sized Virginia university.

Foremost, of course, we are here to learn the skills that will make us successful in life.

Statistics from the Office of Planning, Budget and Analysis reveal that of the 1,742 bachelor's degrees awarded last year, 173 were to majors in communication arts, 144 in accounting and 134 in management. Those were JMU's most popular. The average median cumulative grade point average for undergraduate students last year was 2.76. To get that, we endured a total of 132,012 credit hours during the semester.

Indeed, it sounds impressive — especially knowing it isn't even our forte. The seats in the library may stay full, but we fill Harrisonburg's social spots with more ease. We coax fun from this city. Statistics don't exist, but it seems 132,012 is a mere starting point in reference to the hours we spend frolicking.

Our spirit extends to pride when it comes to our Dukes. Clouds of streaming white explode onto our basketball court with a first score. We arrive at sports events with purple and gold paw prints on our faces, not purple and gold ties around our collars. Our peers at some other university of Virginia may sip gin and tonics at all the right functions. We, showing no shame, just chug beer.

April Wells, Homecoming (Geiger)

JMU vs. UVA (Emerson)

We're content, even proud of our style of living — but not obsessed with it like some other area schools. Many colleges and universities are compulsed with image. They become caught up in a race for sophistication, out-of-control social lives or superior academics. We even things out with a graceful balance of all three.

We also might think of ourselves as a diverse and daring group of college kids, but let's be realistic. We're not as conservative as our friends up the road at Eastern Mennonite College, but comparisons to UCLA seem more unlikely. The JMU community remains generally homogeneous.

Most pattern the typical JMU student as a white female from northern Virginia. While that does represent three majorities, it does not justify as a stereotype.

Last year, there were 350 blacks enrolled, 39 orientals, 34 hispanics and seven Native Americans adding diversity to the campus. By sex, about 55 percent of the student population was female, about 45 percent male.

Seventy-nine percent of our students come from in-state, the greatest numbers from northern Virginia and Rockingham County. Of the 21 percent who arrive from out of state, most are from Maryland, New Jersey and New York respectively.

Band Practice (Helms)

Once at JMU, however, we are residents of Harrisonburg. Most of us spend our weekends here. Much of the town appreciates that, catering to our needs and whims. But sometimes, we are scorned by Harrisonburg residents.

The words, "college student" do, after all, hold certain negative connotations.

It is theorized that college students are incapable of keeping a balanced checking account, have the couth of tribal aborignes, and in our case, are a menace to this otherwise peaceful city of close to 25,000.

But those same college students dump thousands of dollars of sales into the community, work unselfishly toward community enhancement with Logan's Run, Big Brothers and Sisters and many other service projects, and enjoy the area's beauty and history every bit as much as permanent residents.

Eventually though, we must leave our university, but not before each of us has, in some way, scratched a mark into JMU's history. More importantly, however, is the indelible etching of growth that JMU allows us. We arrive as lone freshmen, we grow to be one as a student body, then again we are set out on our own.

But this time, thanks to James Madison University, we are ready ■

Rise and Shine

Like a bugle blast breaking the sleep of 10,000 soldiers . . . like the midnight whir of helicopters signaling Hawkeye and B.J. of incoming wounded . . . another alarm clock, one of several thousand, abruptly ends the comfortable snoozing of a JMU student.

Depending on what went on the four, five or six hours since the student's head hit the pillow, an alarm buzz can be a relatively mild reminder that it's time to get up and prepare for another day on the academic battleground. Or, and this is probably the student norm, a buzzing alarm causes nothing less than a rude awakening. It's an unpleasant reminder to tumble out of bed, preferably landing on the "right" side.

Regardless of which side of the bed a student lands, alarm clocks vary in their means of disrupting sleep. Some aren't even as rude as the conventional ear-piercing zzring! Some students wake up to a monotone beep . . beep . . beep. Others come alive with early morning rock 'n roll from WJSY, and one student I know wakes up to E.T.'s intergalactic jingle. The music plays from her combination E.T. alarm clock/night light. (E.T.'s plastic finger glows in the dark.)

But, essentially alarm clocks all cause the same thing. Eyelids snap open, glazed eyeballs focus, the dream state ends, and consciousness begins to shape the real world. Hangover or no hangover that can be painful!

So what's the best way to start the day? Forget to set your alarm, of course! ■

Key West

Snorkeling in the Carribbean (Walton)

Spring break had to be a wonderful time. The Key West sun probably never stopped shining, and I'm sure the boys were all handsome and deliciously golden. Yes, I bet I had a great time; probably even got a good tan.

Well, I can't really remember the vacation itself too clearly. Komakazi's and watermelon shooters probably fuzzed up most of it. I can't even identify some of my snapshots! But, I do remember the trip back to JMU . . . Hell trapped in a four-door Citation.

Five sandy, sunburnt bodies with original luggage plus souvenirs eagerly jumped into the car ready to hit the road home. Eager, my foot!

We couldn't have been in the car 15 minutes and suddenly we were five, scratchy, irritable people eager only to fight for comfort. We didn't really fist-fight, but I budged and nudged my travel companions several times.

We were trapped in a claustrophobic moving mobile for 29 hours, except for a 2 a.m. sleep break in South Carolina because nobody could stay awake at the wheel.

Open windows gave some relief. Heads hung out of them, and various limbs stretched out of them to get blood circulating.

But nothing brought greater relief than the "Welcome to Harrisonburg" sign.

If I ever go back to Key West, even for no other reason than to come home with crystal clear memories, so I can identify my college spring-break snapshots, I will without a doubt, fly!

Leggy dance routines by flamboyant sororities and fraternities, and sing-along renditions of the hits from then and now were highlights from Greek Sing '83.

Each spring the JMU social fraternities and sororities put on a wild, funny song competition among themselves. Even non-Greeks have been known to laugh hysterically at the performance.

The fraternities and sororities pick themes and songs, and combine the songs into a medley, along with hand motions and dance steps. They also dress in the spirit of the theme chosen.

Sigma Nu took the fraternity third place with "Sigma Nu Wave," and Zeta won third place for the sororities with "We'll be Back After These Messages," a medley of commercials.

The Big Move

Moving into Eagle (Helms)

A new academic year at JMU not only brings new students, new classes, and new construction, it also brings a task — moving in.

North American Van Lines would get a kick out of moving-in-day at JMU. Maybe the top executives would even consider filming the mass exodus into Eagle dorm. What a morale booster that would be for weary company employees — they would all agree how lucky they are not to have to take part in that moving job!

When I "moved" to JMU as a freshman, it was the first time I knew exactly what I was worth: one mere, though tightly-packed station wagon filled with 18 years of my life.

Of course, I was one of the few who brought everything, simply because I feared that my brothers and sister would confiscate anything left behind.

So in the heat of August no less than 23 sweaters and various cold weather garments had to be carried up, up, up into the skyscraper that would become my new home.

Moving boxes into a dorm room, though, is fairly easy. The hard part is getting rid of your parents so you can unpack and rearrange things the way you want them.

So, kiss mom and dad goodbye, unpack one or two boxes, throw the clothes in the closet, shove some bills in your pocket, and head for JM's.

JMU vs. Davidson, 50-0 (Emerson)

Party on the hill. And somewhere, far away a football game too

For thousands of JMU students and alumni the spirit of Homecoming was captured during Saturday's game And much of that spirit came in bottles, cans, coolers, and jugs-on the hill beside the stadium.

That's where many gathered to socialize and support JMU's usual reckless and spontaneous manner. Two guys trooped down the hill and through the crowd with a sofa Alumni brought their infants and a six-pack. Others brought champagne and delicate wine glasses.

If we haven't got couth, we've at least got style.

Meanwhile, our Dukes were doing it to the Wildcats of Davidson College. In our third confrontation with the school, we triumphed a third time — but never have we done it with a score like 50-0.

As well, our Marching Dukes dazzled out ears and eyes as always. And the sun even shone a little.

But thot's not all these people were here for. Shedding their business suits and outside world responsibilities, graduates from within the past decade joined current students, and escaped into a world of memories. With blankets and beer, they whooped and giggled with the best.

And they showed no shame. Just like the old days I guess.

Earlier in the day JMU gave the city a parade. Floats, the Homecoming court, the Marching Royal Dukes and a variety of high school bands and sundry organizations made their way down South Main Street.

As I sat on the curb, I noticed how young the high school instrumentalists looked. Has it been that long since I was in high school?

I wondered if alumni return to JMU, look at us and say, "Boy, they look young. Has it been that long since I was in college?"

At least most of us have our braces off. Most of the majorettes I saw had shinier smiles than uniforms.

There were also the reunions. Carolyn Jordan Green from the class of 1963 said things had changed on campus "for the better. You have more facilities, more activities and a lot more going on. It's beautiful." She seemed happy to be back.

Her family was wearing smiles too — especially daughter Robin. "She's a JMU sophomore," Mrs. Green said.

That said something.

Folks are proud enough of their alma mater to send their own kids here.

That's one way of holding onto college memories. So was coming back to that hill during the football game Saturday.

Entirely respectful or not, much of the campus and many of its graduates were united there in purpose, in spirit and in fun.

JMU knows how to have a good time. And that makes it worth coming home anytime. ■

Our Lovable Mascots

Duke and the band (Helms)

What has a compact muscular body, four legs, short hair, a stubby tail and the ugliest face on campus?

Our very own mascot, Duke!

The English bulldog has been JMU's mascot for 11 years. Chosen in 1972, Duke was introduced at the Madison-George Mason basketball game, Jan. 16, 1973.

Since 1972 JMU has had three other "Dukes." The sororities and fraternities bought our fourth bulldog which is kept by Drs. William R. and Eileen Nelson, head of the political science department and assistant professor of psychology respectively.

Duke IV is not JMU's only mascot. A human dressed as a bulldog was introduced at the JMU-VMI basketball game, Nov. 30, 1982.

This oversized, cuddly bulldog is a captivating crowd-pleaser. Whether teasing the opponents mascot at a football game, or leading cheers, or patting children on the head, "Dukedog" is a smashing success at JMU.

Duke IV and "Dukedog" are a symbol of enthusiasm, hope, and spirit at JMU. Their presence brings a little luck to every game.

Heart Breaker

UVA vs. JMU, 21-14 (Emerson)

Charlottesville was nothing but a heartache.

We lost to UVA in basketball in last year's "game of the year," and we messed up what was perhaps this year's football "game of the year."

It was a heartbreaker of a loss . . . a 21-14 disappointment. Gary Clark's astonishing kick returns gave JMU the edge over UVA in the first half, and everyone, that is everyone decked in purple and gold, was going crazy!

But, tides do turn, and UVA turned several of our "blunders" into scoring drives to clinch the lead . . . the game.

I suppose it was meant to be. Maybe it's partly my fault we lost. I couldn't concentrate on the game — I was keeping myself preoccupied and amused with critical, disgusting thoughts about UVA students socializing throughout the bleachers. Whenever I think of that other school, and believe me that's not often, one stubborn description comes to mind — PREP.

I don't know where this attitude problem comes from, but its there. Dukes just don't like Cavaliers; more specifically Dukes don't like people who wear formal attire to football games. Is that the collegiate look at UVA? Someone makes a fortune selling orange and blue ties! And I'd love to know how many tons of gold have been wasted and rolled into seven millimeter add-a-beads.

My how blood can boil! See what I mean though. Maybe I shouldn't think such negative thoughts about our neighbors down in Charlottesville. Hell, they're just college kids like you and I.

Wait! Hoo's kidding who? I hate them, you hate them, Gary Clark's got to hate them, and by golly we will beat them next year!

Cheer for 'ole JMU

Each Saturday during fall, a strange phenomena occurs. During winter, the strange phenomena reappears at least twice weekly. No one has determined the cause, but the results have been processed. The conclusions from each event are the same: SCHOOL SPIRIT.

On Saturday afternoons when our football team takes the field, the student section of the stadium quickly fills. Chants are echoed, and shades of purple and gold dot the stands

Down on the track the cheering squad picks up the rhythm from the students. Senior Glen Good, a cheerleader, said, "There's the excitement of the game. You get a feeling of strength when the crowd starts yelling."

Members of the cheering squad practice about four days a week. Each workout lasts about two hours. The Purple Squad, a new unit, was introduced in September. Their primary function is to cheer at women's basketball games. The more visible unit, which cheers at football and men's basketball games, is the Gold Squad

Competing with the cheerleaders for crowd control, the Royal Marching Dukes fill section six of the stadium. Under their band jackets, the members wear yellow T-shirts. Each instrumental section personalizes the backs of their shirts with nicknames, such as the T "Tuba" Team.

Do it cheerleaders (Helms)

Toast to the Dukes (Helms)

Whenever the Dukes score, the male cheerleaders and the T "Tuba" Team hit the track for regulation army push-ups — one for each point JMU scores.

Without the students and the fans, however, the efforts of JMU's various cheerleaders and the band would be futile. The real spirit strength comes from the students. As Good said, "The fans can be very aggressive."

"Madison probably has more spirit than other colleges. Everyone's into all sports," said Scott Rohm, drum major for the marching band. "Even when the football team wasn't doing too well, they (the fans) still came out. They were there every Saturday."

The theme for JMU's 10th annual fall Arts and Sciences Symposium struck an ominous chord with 1984 looming towards us.

The Symposium examined the costs and benefits of living in a free society, along with the challenges our basic freedoms' face in response to a rapidly changing society.

The Symposium featured five lecture-discussion sessions. The symposium concluded with an address by Irving Howe, author and historian, on "Freedom and Totalitarianism. Reflections on George Orwell's 1984 and 20th Century History."

A film festival complimented the symposium's theme of freedom with such films as "Animal Farm", "Time Machine", "Fahrenheit 451", and "Dr. Strangelove" This is the first time films have been shown with the annual symposium.

You know those white and blue buses that run through campus all day long? The ambilical cord to HoJo's; the sole means of transportation to the mall for those without cars? Did you ever wonder how JMU students get to ride free, with a valid I.D., while the citizens of Harrisonburg must pay? This has resulted from a changing and growing Harrisonburg Transit system.

The town bus system was first created in 1977 for the primary reason of covering the city's school busing system. But, as the community grew and Harrisonburg annexed even more land, the schools' acquired their own vehicles, and the city changed its routes and times. In January of 1983, after trading in the small, 17-passenger buses, they focused their business on JMU, as well as the community itself.

To meet student needs, the I.D. system was worked out, providing transportation to off-campus people, as well as the Valley Mall.

Things That Go Bump...

It's 9 p.m., Thursday, Oct 27. Peering out one's dorm window, at just the right moment, one might witness a giant pumpkin strolling down the sidewalk. Or, perhaps, the quick cracks of a black cape being whipped through the cool, autumn air seizes one's attention. My mother always told me to watch out for things that go 'bump' in the night.

Even though Monday, Oct 31 is the official day, many students began their Halloween partying the Thursday night before. The camous was bumping through a five-day weekend.

The giant pumpkin and black caped figure cross towards the hospital and down South Main Street. Their journey ends at the Lambda Chi house. Lambda Chi and Sigma Sigma Sigma are kicking off the weekend with their annual Haunted House. Money raised by the goulish participants will be donated to United Way.

The giant pumpkin and black caped figure part at the Haunted House, bent on attending their own celebrations. Many costume parties and Halloween dances dot JMU the entire weekend.

In addition to the giant pumpkin, other students enjoyed the festivities dressed as a Heineken, a giant green M&M and Boy George. Perhaps the costumes were spurred by the craziness in each person, or, by a desperation to create an exceptionally wild costume. Midway Downtown, Pizza Hut, J.M.'s, and even some of the dorm halls, offered prizes to those with the most outstanding costumes.

One may begin to wonder about the effects these five-day holiday weekends have on people. Where's the Great Pumpkin when you need him?

With over 1000 students employed on campus, JMU could almost be called a student-run university.

Many of us need money to pay for our schooling and many of us find that the money we made this summer or that Mom and Pop send us, runs out before Christmas.

The solution? An on-campus job.

Financial Aid offers two types of student employment — the College Work Study Program (CWSP) and the 10-Hour Employment Program. There are 623 students working as laboratory assistants, physicol and health education building workers, and in the post office and administrative and academic offices.

Robyn Nesselroat (Helms)

Senior Kelly Kendall has worked in the Philosophy and Religion department for two years. She says about her job, "I've learned a lot about fighting office equipment!" She also said that her duties include xeroxing, dittoing, and getting along with people.

Food Service is another primary place of employment here at JMU. The 500 students employed work in D-Hall, Duke's Grill and for Catering and Special Events. This is a favorite alternative to some students. You're able to work with many others and the hours go beyond normal school time hours

Campus Security is a smaller area of employment. Approximately 45 students serve as police cadets, better known as "Campus Cops." The hours these students work are different from the other jobs because they work night-shift and special events such as concerts.

Finally, the Intramural department hires some students to serve as athletic officials. Referees, judges, timers, and umpires are needed to run JMU's large intramural program. Junior Todd Niven who serves as a softball umpire says, "I passed a test to be certified so I could umpire three games a week."

So if cash is running low, campus employment can help pay off some of those accumulated bills. ■

CAR'S

"Let the Good Times Roll"

For most JMU students there has always been a quest to find the perfect hangout Whether it be grabbing a quick lunch, talking, dancing, meeting some friends, or sipping some cool brews, students want an exciting place they can rely on for fun. Sure there are places all over Harrisonburg to go for fun, but some of these places get old, are somewhat expensive, or just do not meet the strict requirements students demand for a good time. Well, something hit big this school year — Car's — the restaurant/bar located on Main Street in downtown Harrisonburg.

Car's, formerly the Elbow Room, opened in December after months of renovation. The new bar boasts of simple, but nice decor of classic car lithographs, garage-type lamps suspended from the ceiling, and one of the more unique additions is the front portion of an old pickup truck. The D.J. spins records from inside the truck. Along with these renovations, Car's has new booths and tables Although lunch consists mainly of business people, the crowd quickly changes to students as night approaches. As the students start coming in, it is not an uncommon occurrence to see a small line waiting to get in, especially on weekend nights

One of the main reasons for the lines is because there is usually no cover charge, and the beer prices are much less than at other places. These qualities, coupled with the nice atmosphere seems to provide a good hangout for many students. Once a person walks through the door it is not uncommon to see the gals scoping the guys and vice versa, or to see a packed dance floor.

So, if you are looking for a quiet place to talk, or a place to hangout regularly, for many students Car's is the place to go. It offers a change of pace, it is new, and it is fun. Bars come and they go in Harrisonburg, but for right now, a lot of students are saying goodbye to J M.'s, Jo's, and HoJo's, and hello to Car's. ■

RAIN

Gene Kelly must be on drugs to think singing in the rain is a glorious feeling.

Any man dressed in a suit strolling down Main St., USA, pausing only to stamp in rain puddles and catch raindrops on his tongue just hasn't got it all together.

Ask any JMU student how he feels on a rainy day and the answer inevitably will be: miserable or nasty or terrible or tired. No one ever feels like dancing in the stuff, it's too wet. And who'd want to eat it — there's nothing about raindrops that excite my tastebuds. And who knows what kind of cloud it may have passed through. Raindrops may have been pure H_2O in 1950 but these are the acid rain '80s.

Though I will "never stop the rain by complaining", secretly it's good to know that I can use a rainy day as an excuse to skip class and stay safe and dry under the bedcovers . . . I wouldn't want to melt!

Jennifer Beals step aside. Everyday from 6 to 7 p.m., hundreds of girls, and a few guys head for the biggest exercise class in the area — Jane Fonda can't even boast of a class so large (excuse the pun) and energetic.

Godwin Hall, the gymnasium where our basketball Dukes were born, and went on to become Cinderella — stars in the NCAA Play-offs, perhaps now can boast of an even greater show. The aerobics class, which takes place each evening, is "Flashdance", on stage! live!

Every night, girls put on their tattered best, grab a fluffy, white towel, and race to Godwin, where wiggles, leg kicks, splits, and back spins make the most limber "dancer" sweat.

The routines may not be as flashy — no buckets of water please — and the colorful costumes, though torn, hardly resemble lace teddies. However, the girls who work out at Godwin do so with fierce dedication. There are no "doubles" performing in Godwin's "Flashdance".

Joe Student climbs the steps to the Warren Campus Center for a brief stopover before class to check his mail. As he steps inside, Haunting Halloween cookies are practically shoved into his mouth. Two students quickly hit him up for a dozen, and then send him on his merry way.

This is a typical scene in the student center and all over campus.

Student organizations raise money by selling raffle tickets, buttons, donuts, candy, college cups, and mums for mom.

Just yesterday, Sigma Nu seemed to be making a small fortune selling Uncle Ron buttons outside of D-Hall.

Imagine . . . if they sell 2000 buttons, they'll make $1,500!

By selling choice wares to passing students, organizations have found an effective, easy way to raise money.

If you're in the mood to do a little shopping, but can't get to Valley Mall, do some "shopping" around campus. I'm sure you'll find just the thing. ■

Junior Steve Huffman became JMU's only state champion when he won the 10,000 meter run at the Virginia Intercollegiate League Championships last spring Sophomare Lenny Russel was chosen the Most Valuable Runner at the conclusion of the outdoor season by figuring prominently in the 400 meter individual and relay events. He also qualified and placed in the 200 meter run at the IC4 A Championships.

Other top performers for JMU were senior Neil

John Bowser and Art Baker (Emerson)

Freeman who finished consistently in the top 3 in the pole vault. Former state champion Jeff Wallin managed only a third place in the shot put at the VIL championships, but went on to break his school record by finishing 2nd in the shot at the Atlantic Coast Relays.

Senior Reggie Hayes competed in both the long and high jumps, placing in both at the VIL Championships and also qualified for the IC4A Championships by winning both events at the Penn State Relays. Reggie Hayes and Jeff Wallin were both chosen as Most Valuable Field Performers for their season's efforts.

At that same meet, there were 2 other individual winners from JMU: junior Percy Barnett in the triple jump and Freeman again in the pole vault.

Both of JMU's top female awards went to members of the track and field team last year. Suzi Shreckhise was named the female scholar-athlete and Noel Deskins was selected the JMU female athlete of the year.

The Dukes were the Virginia Intercollegiate League (VIL) champions last winter. JMU placed individuals on both the state and national levels and the team broke several school records last year.

Shreckhise placed 10th in the indoor 600 yard dash and 30th in the outdoor 400 meter hurdles at the NCAA National Championships. She placed 18th in the 400 meter hurdles at the TAC/U.S.A. Outdoor Championships and was named the team's most outstanding athlete in the running events while setting three outdoor and two indoor school records in her senior year.

Beth Lippard, JMU's most outstanding athlete in the field event, was a state champion in the javelin and set a JMU record in that event. Lesa Diggs won the state long jump title and set JMU records in two outdoor and four indoor events. Rhonda Mason won state championships in both the indoor and outdoor meets when she won the indoor 55 meter dash and outdoor 200 meter dash. Mason broke JMU records in both events as well as two additional indoor dashes.

Denise Marini was first in the VIL indoor 3000 meter run and set a JMU record in that event and the two mile indoor run. Angela Russell won the state 100 meter dash and teamed with Mason, Diggs and Shreckhise to come in first in the outdoor 4x100 meter relay at the VIL tournament.

Russell also set a JMU record in the 100 meter dash.

A total of 22 indoor records were set by JMU's track and field team last year.

In Eastern AIAW competition, JMU finished 14th of 36 teams at the Indoor Championships and sixth of 34 teams at the Outdoor Championships ■

The Archery team once again proved to be one of the most successful athletic teams ast JMU last spring.

The women's team, according to coach Margaret Horn, lived up to their full potential with a second place finish at the National Intercollegiate Championships.

Junior Cindy Gilbert's consistently outstanding placement added much to the team effort. Gilbert will play a key role in next season's standings for the team.

The men's team, however ended the season on a disappointing note when they barely maintained a second place at Nationals.

There was some consolation when a school record of six archers from JMU were named to the 1983 Notional Archery Association (NAA) All-American team. Seniors Rob Kaufhold and Sue King and Gilbert were named to the NAA first team, while senior John Grace and sophomores Randy Edmondson and Tom Wilson were named to the NAA second team.

The Dukes look forward to next season with the return of archers Gilbert, Edmondson, Wilson, and Dave Darnall to lead the way ■

The men's golf team's schedule last spring was made up of seven tournaments located mostly in Virginia. Their best finish of the spring was a 2nd place tie out of a field of 18 at the William and Mary Invitational. Sophomore Pete Hiskey was JMU's lowest scorer in this tourney with rounds of 77-75. In addition, Hiskey led the team with an overall average of 76-72. Senior Bobby Penn followed with a 76-83 average. Penn managed to make the JMU low in three tournaments.

This fall's team had a tougher time with the loss of golfers Bobby Penn, Tim Lyons and Jimmy King.

Their schedule was made up of five tournaments. The Dukes' best finish of the season came in the VMI-Washington & Lee Invitational where they were 8th of 18 teams. Fall low scorers included Pete Hiskey, Dave Nocar and Tracy Newman.

Groat and Creps led the women's golf team with strokes per round averages of 81.6 and 81.9 respectively, and the Dukes placed second in the Virginia Intercollegiate Championships.

Groat placed first and set a tournament record while leading the Dukes to second place in the Longwood Invitational. Creps and senior Wendy Currie tied for third place in the JMU Invitational to help the team post a first place finish in the five-team, 27-hole tournament.

Creps recorded another top finish in 1983. At the Wolfpact Invitational at N.C. State, Creps and N.C. State freshman Leslye Johnson combined for a first in collegiate golf history. Creps and Johnson each scored a hole-in-one on the same hole in the tournament's second round while playing in the same threesome. Creps and the Dukes finished sixth in the 13-team, 54-hole tournament.

The Fall season saw the return of most of the top golfers from the 1982 season. Their best finish came in the ECAC Championships where the Dukes finished in 2nd place.

The final tourney of the season was the N.C. State Invitational where JMU earned a 10th place finish. Top golfers from JMU were junior Allison Groat and sophomore Laura Hoover who shot 245 and 253, respectively ■

1983 was an interesting season for the JMU volleyball team. With only four returning players, the team added several new freshmen plus three upperclassmen, all had never played collegiate volleyball before.

Finishing with a 20-30 record and a 4th place in the Virginia Inter-collegiate League (VIL) Championships, 1st year coach Deb Tyson, nevertheless, was pleased with the team. "We were champions behind the scenes. Despite our record, we did the best with what we had, while working and pulling together as a team.

Key players included freshman setter Sandy Heinbach who figured prominently in the Dukes 5-1 offense. She was named to the All-Tournament team at the Slippery Rock Invitational along with junior Sheila Chittams. Chittams was also named to the All-State team for the second year.

Other strong players included sophomore Kathy Mendel, an explosive, though injury-plagued player. Senior Cheryl Bubeck, a first year player, also played an important role in the Duke's lineup.

Despite having only two fencers with varsity experience, the JMU fencing team had a good season.

"Since we fenced national caliber teams (Penn State was last season's national champion,) this year was exceptional," coach Jean Dalton said of the 8-6 dual meet season.

The team lost four matches in a row near the middle of the season, but came on strong at the end, winning five of its last six.

JMU was strong enough at the end of the season to finish second in the state tournament. Senior Barbara Murphy, one of the experienced fencers and the team's steadiest performer all season, and junior Jackie Roller each posted 10-4 records in the tournament. Senior Debbie Lung, a varsity fencer last year, earned a 9-5 record in the tournament.

The junior varsity team was the best in the state, posting an 8-4 regular season record and winning the state tournament ■

Winning was the name of the game last spring for the Men's tennis team. Facing a tough schedule, the Dukes overcame strong teams such as Penn State and West Virginia for a 17-5 winning record.

"Some of the strong points of the '83 spring team were the doubles combinations and team unity under the leadership of senior captain, Rob Crocker," according to Coach Jack Arbogast.

Using several combinations at different rankings was the key to JMU's success. The doubles teams of sophomores Claude Hanfling and Mark Trinka occupied the number one spot (802) for most of the season.

Trinka, much improved from his freshman year, captured the #1 rank on the team while senior Mark Michel played #2 and Hanfling was #3. The remaining singles rankings were held by equally strong and consistent performers who combined their efforts to make it a successful season.

Claude Hanfling was selected MVP with an individual record of 19-2. #4 player, sophomore Kent Boerner was an equally consistent player with his 17-5 record.

The Dukes came back in the fall to finish with a 5-1 record. Their only loss came from West Virginia in JMU's own October Classic. This year also marked the inauguration of a new Fall tournament for the Dukes, the ECAC South Championships. JMU finished 5th of 9 teams in this event which included such teams as East Carolina, George Mason, Navy, Richmond, and William and Mary.

After a 7-1 fall season, the JMU women's tennis team compiled an 8-6 dual match record last spring and placed third in both the mid-Atlantic Collegiate Championships and Virginia Intercollegiate League (VIL) Championships.

Custer combined with freshman Ingrid Hetz to place second in the second flight of the Mid-Atlantic Collegiate Championships. Hetz had a 9-3 record at #3 singles and placed second in the third flight at the Mid-Atlantic Championships.

Susie Peeling was 8-6 in #1 singles for the Dukes in the spring and Kathy Gerndt was 7-7 at the #4 position. Peeling and Gerndt teamed to finish in second flight doubles of the VIL Championships.

During the Fall '83 season the Dukes compiled a 5-1 record in dual match play, losing only to UVA.

Team captain Gerndt was undefeated in singles play with a 5-0 record, while the top doubles team of freshman Terri Gaskill and senior Kathy Holleran was also unbeaten with a 5-0 record.

The JMU soccer team allowed only 14 goals in 1983 when the Dukes turned in their best year defensively since 1975

No opponent scored more than two goals against the Dukes, who finished the season with five shutouts and an 0.87 goals-against average

JMU was 6-7-2 on the year with one-third of the Dukes' games going into overtime. Some of JMU's losses came to, then 13th-ranked Virginia (1-2), 1982 NCAA quarterfinalist George Mason (0-2) and then 18th-ranked Loyola College (0-1) in overtime. Dukes' wins came against VMI (4-0), Virginia Commonwealth (3-1), Richmond (2-1) and Virginia Tech (3-2) in overtime. The team also finished their season on a positive note by upsetting regionally third-ranked William and Mary 1-0 in the final game of the year. Despite the loss to JMU, the Indians received an at-large bid to the NCAA tournament but were defeated in the first round by Virginia. The Cavaliers advanced to the semifinals before losing to finalist Indiana

Sophomore Mark Agee led the Dukes in scoring with six goals and one assist. Senior "Scooter" McKenney handed out three assists to lead JMU in that category. Freshmen Tony Dickson and Matt McGrain, and sophomore Marc Weaver joined McKenney in scoring two goals each for the Dukes. Senior Jeff Brown and freshman Paul Rider each added one goal and two assists.

Brown, the JMU captain, has enjoyed an outstanding career at JMU. Despite playing much of the last two years in the Dukes' defense, Brown graduates with nine goals and 12 assists for his career His assist total ties him for fourth place on JMU's all-time assist list Brown is a three-time All-Virginia Intercollegiate League (VIL) selection and this year was an All-South selection. He was also named MVP both offensively and defensively

Goalkeeper Eric Erdman finished his junior season with an 0.91 goals-against average. An All-VIL goalie in 1982 and 1983, he compiled three solo shut-outs and shared two others this season in goal for the Dukes

Other Dukes who saw considerable action for JMU this season include senior Rob Nemzek, sophomores Steve Shaw and Ted Stack and freshmen Dan Tribastone and Dan Stewart.

A relatively young team, the Dukes will only lose four players to graduation defender Rob Nemzek, reserve goal-keeper John Miller, Scooter McKenney (up front) and Jeff Brown (at sweeper-back).

JMU's 1983 baseball team did what no other team in the state of Virginia has ever done when it won the Eastern Regional Tournament and advanced to the College World Series.

The Dukes were one of eight teams to be a regional champion and participant in the CWS.

JMU had entered their sixth ECAC South Tournament with a 32-9 record. The Dukes won their first game, defeating William and Mary 3-2, but lost its next two.

After the tourney, the season was over, or so it seemed, and the JMU baseball team went home. Then, 3 days before the start of the NCAA Regional Tournament, Coach Brad Babcock received a bid from the NCAA selection committee. The Dukes would be playing baseball again. Coach Babcock recalled his players and after a day and a half of practice, the Dukes left for North Carolina and JMU's Third regional appearance in the last four years.

As the number six seed out of six teams at the regionals, the dukes found themselves matched against the number one seed South Carolina in the first game. The result was JMU 9, Gamecocks 4.

Game two saw JMU matched against William and Mary, the team that was representing the ECAC South.

Cary Nemeth (Helms)

The result was JMU 13, Indians 8.

Game 3. JMU vs. The Citadel. The result was JMU 5, The Citadel 2.

The next game pitched JMU against the University of Delaware, a baseball powerhouse. JMU was undefeated so far. The Dukes had to win only one of the next two games, but Delaware had to win two straight without a loss. The Dukes took no chances, defeating the Blue Hens 6-5 and winning the tournament with four straight upsets.

James Madison University's 1983 baseball team was on it's way to Omaha, Nebraska, home of the College World Series. Only seven other teams in the United States were there. JMU had hit the big time

In the College World Series, the winner of the Eastern Regional was slotted to play the University of Texas, a team making its 22nd appearance to the CWS.

Once again JMU found itself up against the number one seed, this time in the form of eventual national champion Texas. The Longhorns downed the Dukes 12-0 and went on to sweep the series. In the consolation round, JMU was eliminated by #2 ranked Stanford 3-1.

Several Dukes earned individual honors and set individual records Senior Jeff Kidd set the record for most hits in a career with 233 and tied the record for most at bats in a game with seven.

Senior Dennis Knight had a record 161 career bases on balls and Junior Justin Gannon set the record for most innings pitched in a season with 92 2/3.

Senior Jim Knicely was named Eastern Regional Co-Most Valuable Player and was Most Valuable Player of the Stetson Invitational Tournament. Knicely was also named to the All-ECAC South Team, Eastern Regional All-Tournament Team and to the Stetson Invitational All-Tournament Team.

Kidd was named to the Eastern Regional and Stetson Invitational Tournaments. Munley was an All-ECAC South and All-Eastern Region selection. Steve Cullers and Jeff Urban were also selected to the Eastern Regional All-Tournament Team, and Bob Lamon and Dave Pleasants were members of the Stetson Invitational All-Tournament Team.

Coach Babcock was named Eastern Region Coach of the Year for the second time in three seasons.

Prior to the beginning of this season, Football News" magazine rated the JMU football team eighth in the nation in I-AA schools. The Sporting News" listed senior wide receiver Gary Clark and sophomore linebacker Charles Haley as pre-season All-Americans. In addition, the 1983 Dukes returned 55 lettermen and 15 starters from last year's team that finished the season 8-3.

On offense the Dukes looked strong at the quarterback position, returning junior Jon Roddy to the starting lineup with senior Tom Bowles certainly an experienced back-up.

Senior Brian Coe and sophomore Warren Marshall were veterans at the running back position, with sophomore Victor McPherson in reserve.

JMU's front line was full of skilled and knowledgeable big men.

JMU's defense looked equally as formidable.

Mickey Stinnett, the Dukes' junior punter and place kicker was coming off a fine season in 1982. This was the year that was to be. There was talk of playoffs even before the season began.

The first game saw JMU come out on top. The Dukes traveled to Boone, N.C., to defeat the Appalachian State 24-20. The Dukes looked impressive.

The second game saw JMU lose a heartbreaking 21-14 decision to Virginia in Charlottesville. Injuries were beginning to take their toll on the Dukes.

But JMU rallied back to de-

But then the nightmare. Injuries struck. The Dukes lost Roddy and Bowles to injuries Marshall had been injured before the season even began and was red-shirted Brian Coe was injured Gary Clark, Packy Turner, Andre Parker, Tony Thomas, Larry Bland and Charles Haley all were injured. At one point in the season, sixteen members of the JMU team were either not playing due to injuries or were playing despite the injuries.

were narrawly defeated 24-21 at William and Mary. La-Fayette beat them 31-14 Delaware squeaked by the Dukes 26-23 despite a gallant fourth quarter in which JMU refused to give up.

Then the team suffered their worst defeat at the hands of Richmond The score was 32-0. On the road for the second straight week, the Dukes hardly fared better at Shippensburg. They lost 29-9 At home for the season finale, JMU once again held on and fought but couldn't scrap together a needed touchdown. The Dukes lost their seventh straight when they were defeated 10-3 by Towson State.

The Dukes had gone from 3-1 to 3-8 and were left with a team that was a skeleton of the team that had started the year against Appalachian State Much of the team was on the sidelines. The rest of it limped there and back.

But despite it all, the 1983 JMU Dukes broke or tied 68 school records. Single game individual records were broken by Tom Bowles, Gary Clark, Brian Coe, Mickey Stinnett, and "Packy" Turner Individual season records were broken by Tom Bowles, Gary Clark, Mickey Stinnet and "Packy" Turner. Individual career records were broken by Tom Bowles, Gary Clark, Brian Coe, Mickey Stinnett and "Packy" Turner. Nine single game team records and 10 season team records were broken or tied by the Dukes.

Despite their record and their disappointing second half of the season, the Dukes never laid down and died.

Gary Clark finished the season tied for 12th in the nation in I-AA schools with a 10.4 yards punt return average Clark was 19th in the country in all-purpose running, averaging 135 9 yards per game and was tied for 19th with 5.2 receptions per game. He established an NCAA Division I-AA record with a single game high 183 yards in punt returns in the game against Virginia Clark broke or tied 12 season and eight career records at JMU

Mickey Stinnett averaged 40.9 yards per punt in 1983, tying him in eighth place in the natian in Division I-AA in that category

Charles Haley took part in 143 tackles in 1983 and was credited with 35 unassisted tackles, 50 first hits and 58 assists. He also had four quarterback sacks and caused two fumbles.

The JMU Dukes are very much alive.

JMU's season was highlighted by wins over defending national champion Massachusetts, in-state rival Virginia and two against Old Dominion. Four of JMU's losses were on the road to Penn State, Delaware, Maryland and Temple, all teams that were nationally ranked

Junior Sue Peacock led the Dukes in scoring with 36 goals and 16 assists, and set career records with 105 goals, 53 assists and 263 career points Senior Sarah Heilman, voted JMU's most valuable offensive player, was second in scoring with 34 goals and 11 assists. Sue Cox and Robyn Dunn each had 15 assists and had 30 and 27 goals respectively

Goalkeeper Chris Bauer was the team's most valuable defensive player and was named to the Virginia III selection team.

Also on defense, third man Dorothy Vaughan was named an Honorable Mention All-American and was chosen for the All-South Region team and South II and Virginia I selection teams. Ending the season with an 18th place NCAA ranking the JMU Field Hockey team finished 2nd in the Virginia Intercollegiate League Championships to the defending national champions Old Dominion University.

Coach Dee McDonough said, "We started out slow but came on strong towards the end of the season" which is reflected in the record 13-9-1.

Some of their important wins come over in-state rivals UVA and W&M with scores of 3-2 and 2-1, respectively in the VIL Championships plus regular season wins over UVA and a 1-1 tie with W&M.

Offensively, Chris Bauer was awarded the team MVP while Dorothy Vaughan received the defensive MVP award. Bauer also named to the All-State team after the VIL Championships.

Leading scorer for the season was Chris Bauer who had 9 goals and 2 assists. For the second year in a row, Junior Joyce Metcalf was the second leading scorer with 5 goals and 6 assists. Goal keeper Gina Kuta defended JMU with .73 goals a game average and nine shut outs. ■

The men's cross country team was off to a good start for the Fall season with a 1st and 2nd place finish in the Essex Invitational and the Indiana (Pa.) Invitational. However, in the middle of the season, the flubug struck and Coach Ed Witt said, "At one point, all but four runners were affected by the bug."

This had an effect on the remainder of the season with some of the runners never regaining top form. Nevertheless, for the 3rd year Mark Nichols proved to be the most consistent runner. Junior Greg Hershey, senior Steve Huffman and freshman Jeff Mort also had good seasons. The Dukes finished the season with a 6th place at the Virginia Intercollegiate League (VIL) Championship, and a 5th place at the ECAC's.

Compiling a 6-7 dual meet record, JMU's men's swimming and diving team couldn't follow up on last year's 9-4 record However, this season saw some outstanding performances.

Early in the season, the Dukes narrowly defeated long-time rival William and Mary by one point

At the state championships in December, senior co-captain Ken Browne was named Outstanding Swimmer in leading JMU to their second straight state championship

Throughout the season, Coach Charles Arnold relied on the consistent efforts of junior Bill Casazza, and sophomores Scott Martinson and Matt McShane

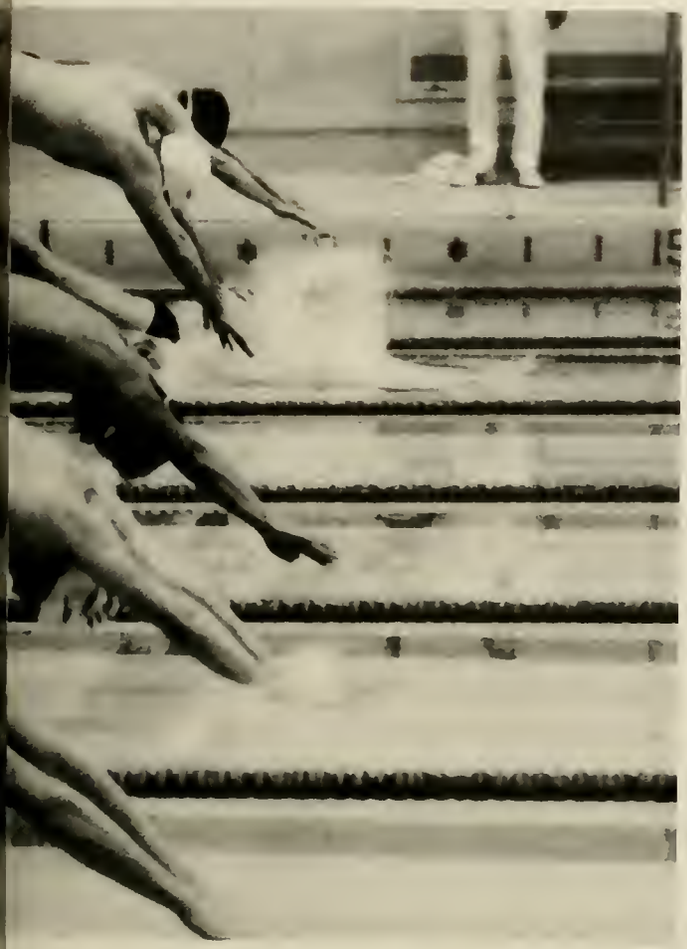

Casazza led the Dukes ECAC Championships qualifying contingent with three individual and two relay swims. Martinson qualified in the 500 freestyle and 400 IM while McShane swam the 100 and 200 butterfly

The 1983-84 season saw the emergence of several promising freshman also Chris Keoughan, who broke the school record in the 100 backstroke, qualified for the ECAC's in both 100 and 200 backstroke, Erik Smitherman in the 100 breaststroke, and Mike Dreisch in a relay

After a diverless fall semester which hurt the Dukes in scoring, sophomore Terry Anthony returned second semester to lead in diving

With most of the swimmers returning next year, the Dukes will lose co-captain Stuart Burdette who was hampered by illness this season, backstroker Tom Gittins, and Ken Browne to graduation.

Posting a 5-7 dual meet record, the women's swim team nevertheless had some bright spots in their season. One of those bright spots was freshman Leslie Pike who broke school records in both the 200 and 400 IM's. She swam a 4:47.3 against VCU, breaking a six-year-old JMU record.

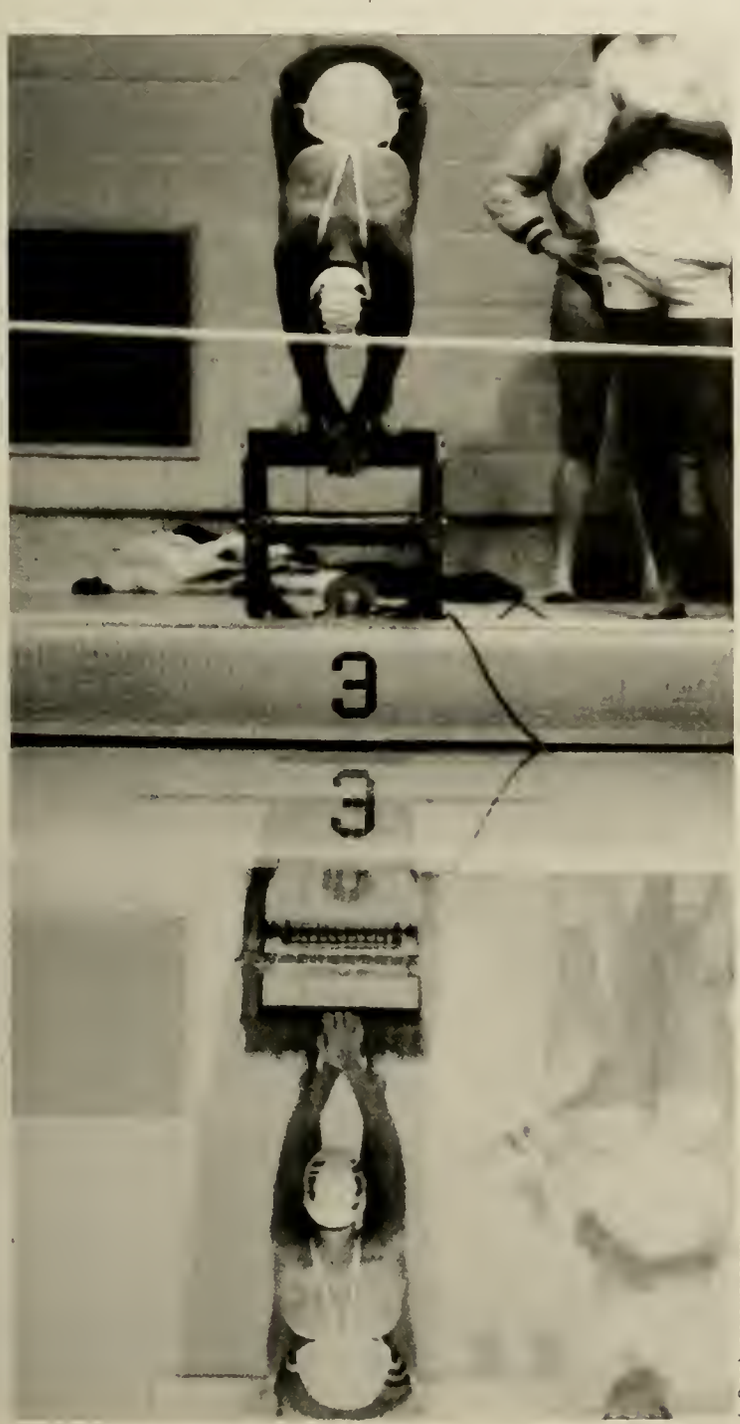

Another record was broken by senior co-captain Lisa Laiti in the 1,000 freestyle, closing out her college career.

The Duke's Most Valuable Swimmer was freshman Lynn Hobson.

Coach Rose Ann Benson, in her fifth year at JMU, relied mostly on underclassmen for points. In addition to Pike and Hobson, other top swimmers were freshman breaststroker Sue Gervinski and sophomores Chris Ann Hartwig and Marjie Webb.

At the season-ending Seahawk Invitational, another sophomore, Colleen "Bird" Loughlin, claimed the Dukes' only first place finish in the 100 backstroke.

In diving, junior co-captain Stephanie Smith, a former national qualifier, won points for JMU, along with freshman Donna Smith. ■

For JMU's men's basketball team, the 1983-84 season certainly had its ups and downs. The Dukes finished with a 15-14 record that showed these inconsistencies, but after graduating four starters from last year's ECAC South champion team, the Dukes knew they were in for a different kind of year.

JMU had ten players who played in at least 19 of 29 games, and nine of them averaged at least 16 minutes of playing time. There were 11 different starting lineups with no player starting every game.

There was no one star for the Dukes this season, but there were a lot of players who made their presence known.

Senior captain Derek Steele was often the most visible player with his brilliant passes and his dribbling through the legs of the Dukes' opponents. He tallied 133 assists this season for a career total of 338, second only to David Dupont's 349. Steele also led JMU in scoring, with an 11.9 average, and in steals with 53 for the year. He saw the most ploying time of any ployer, averaging nearly 35 minutes per game.

JMU's second guard, freshmon Eric "Boo Boo" Brent, started 27 gomes for the Dukes, more than anyone else. Playing in every game, he was second on the team in scoring average (9.0 points), steals (35) ond minutes played average (32.3). Brent also finished third in rebounds with 106 in his rookie season.

Sophomore center Eric Esch led the Dukes in rebounds with 149 and was third in scoring with 7.7 points per game. Freshman guord/forward George Kingland overaged 7.3 points and senior forword/center Keith Brodley led the team in field goal percentage, making 55 of 85 attempts from the floor for o 6.5 points per game average on 64.7% shooting.

Also making significant contributions this season were junior forwards Greg Mosten ond Darrell Jackson with 132 and 102 rebounds respectively, junior guord/forward Jimmy Masloff and freshman forward John Newmon. Sophomore forward Todd Banks and freshman guord Anthony Inge, as well as sophomore guard/forward Bill Hughes ond freshman point guard Kevin Sutton, also played key roles as reserves for the Dukes.

At times this season, JMU played phenomenally well, especially considering the overoll youth and inexperience of this 1983-84 squad. Early in the year, the Dukes nearly upset Virginia in Charlottesville, losing only 53-50. They defeoted Fairleigh-Dickinson to win the championship of the JMU Invitational, but the Dukes lost to SMU in the consolations of the Rebel Roundup in Las Vegas right before Christmos.

JMU definitely played better in the Convocation Center than on the road, winning 12 of 16 home games this season. At the "Electric Zoo," the Dukes avenged the losses they suffered at Old Dominion, at George Mason and at Richmond. JMU split games with Navy and defeated East Carolina twice, but the team suffered defeat twice at the hands of William and Mary, resulting in a number five seed in the ECAC South Conference Tournament played in the Convocation Center.

Mosten and Hughes (Emerson)

Once again the Dukes shone as they "upset" number four seeded George Mason in the tournament's first round. In the semifinals, however, the Dukes fell victim to top-seeded and eventual conference Champion Richmond.

JMU loses two seniors to graduation, Derek Steele and Keith Bradley, who will surely be missed. The rest of the Dukes, however, have had a season to learn from these veterans and have been able to gain the experience that they lacked coming into this year. Rest assured, the Dukes WILL be back. ■

JMU's women's basketball team may not have reached its goal of a .500 season but, with a record of 13-15 and a 55-53 loss in the final regular-season game, the Dukes couldn't have come much closer.

JMU's 13 wins more than doubled the six wins of each of the past three seasons when the team finished 6-18 each year. The Dukes also advanced to the second round of the first-ever ECAC South Women's Basketball Tournament by avenging their two-point loss to William and Mary.

Flo Jackson (Geiger)

Manelski and Franken (Emerson)

In the first round of the ECAC's, the Dukes eliminated the Indians with a 73-43 stomping. JMU then lost in the second round to top-seeded Richmond.

The Dukes lose three players to graduation. Betsy Blose and Mary Gilligan graduate in May, and Deana Meadows finishes her eligibility as a graduate student in JMU's psychology department.

Blose, a JMU co-captain, was a starter her first two years at the guard position and has been a reserve the past two years. Gilligan transferred to JMU prior to the 1982-83 season and has been a part-time starter at the point guard position where she averaged 4.1 points per game this season. Meadows, a center, injured her foot in the second game of last season and was sidelined for the remainder of that year. After electing to return as a graduate student in order to play one more year of basketball, Meadows was re-injured early in the season and did not play the rest of the year as well.

All five starters from the 1983-84 team will return for JMU. Juniors Sue Manelski and Michele James will be back for their final season. Manelski, a co-captain who was named to this year's all-conference team, has led the Dukes in scoring the past three years and scored her 1,000 career point Feb. 6. This season, she averaged 13.1 points per game and was consistently ranked in the top 10 in the NCAA Division I statistics in free throw shooting percentage. Manelski finished the season ranked fifth in the nation shooting 85.7% from the foul line (84-98).

James was JMU's only other scorer in double figures this year, averaging 10.5 points per game. She has been the team's second leading scorer for three seasons and is fourth on JMU's career scoring list with 856 career points. James has been the Dukes' leading rebounder for the past three years as well, averaging 8.7 rebounds per game this season to rank fourth on JMU's all-time rebounding list.

Freshman starters for the Dukes included Julie Franken, Flo Jackson and Betsy Witman, each of whom were named ECAC South Rookie of the Week this season. Witman received the honor twice and Franken and Jackson once each. Of the five times in 1983-84 that a Rookie of the Week selection was made, JMU freshmen received the award four times.

Franken, playing at center for the injured Meadows, led the team in blocked shots with 11 and was second in rebounding

Jackson led JMU with 73 assists and 41 steals despite starting only half of the Dukes' 28 games at the point guard position.

Witman was third in both scoring (9.9 average) and rebounding (5.6 average) while starting every game but the first. In her first regular-season collegiate outing, the forward set a JMU record when she hit 7-7 shots from the floor.

Also returning for the Dukes will be sophomore forwards Georgia Deren and Susan Flynn.

JMU's three remaining freshmen include center Erin Mahony, guard Rhonda Cooper and forward Julie Hopkins.

The Dukes set two season records this year under second year coaches Shelia Moorman and Andy Morrison. JMU scored 1,761 points for the season, breaking the old record of 1,708 points, and the Dukes shot 44.4% from the floor to break the record of 42.9% ■

The 1983-84 season was the year of the record for the JMU men's gymnastics team. New records were set in four of the six individual events as well as in the all-around competition this season. JMU's team scoring record was broken four times and hit an all-time high when the Dukes scored 236.20 points to place second at the Virginia state championships.

Another first occurred in the state meet when sophomore Tim Ratliff became the first men's gymnast at JMU to win two events in a state meet. Ratliff tied state meet records with scores of 9.1 in both the parallel bars and the horizontal bar in winning both events.

Also at the state meet, senior Jon Perry, who has one year of eligibility remaining, tied for second in the floor exercise with 9.2 points and in the horizontal bar with 8.55 points.

Junior transfer Tom Manik tied for second place in the vault with a 9.2. Sophomore captain Dave Kinnick placed fifth in the parallel bars and the pommel horse.

In the all-around competition at the state meet, Ratliff and Kinnick placed third and fourth respectively.

Earlier in the season, Mannik broke the JMU pommel horse record of 7.95 points when he scored 8.65 points at the Towson Open. At the dual meet at William and Mary, Ratliff scored 9.4 points in the horizontal bar to break his own JMU record and then scored a school-record 50.5 points in the all-around competition.

The Dukes raised their regular-season dual meet record to 4-5 this year under second-year coach Scott Gauthier ■

After an up and down dual meet season, the JMU women's gymnastics team put together an outstanding performance to capture the state championship.

The Dukes defeated William and Mary by one point in the state meet after having lost to the Indians during the dual meet season.

Freshman Laura Peterson won the all-around title by winning two events, the uneven parallel bars and the floor exercise. In the bars, Peterson's routine earned her a Godwin Hall record with a score of 9.2.

JMU sophomores Tracy Hash and Charlotte Dempsey took second and third places, respectively, in the same meet.

Senior Stephanie Mann, an all-around contender, was forced out of competition when she injured her foot during an event.

The up and down 5-4 dual meet record was partially due to injuries. Karen Polis, the team's top all-around at the beginning of the season, went down in December, and sophomore Michelle Gaston missed the entire season.

Other top performers for the team this season included Marcella Van Peppen, who won the balance beam in the state meet, and Mann, who earlier broke her own school record in the vault with a 9.1. ■

JMU's 1983-84 wrestling season was once again a mixture of successes and disappointments, with much of the disappointment a result of illness and injury.

The Dukes finished the season with an 11-4 dual match record, and all of their losses were by a combined total of 20 points.

JMU boasted one state champion and two Eastern Region runners-up this season. One of those second-place finishers, sophomore Tony Gentile, received one of the region's three at-large berths to compete at the NCAA national tournament at the Meadowlands Arena in East Rutherford, N.J.

At the NCAA Eastern Regional Championships, freshman Jeff Bowyer was a runner-up at the 118-pound weight class and Gentile placed second at 150 pounds. Junior transfer Mike Thomas finished third at 167 pounds and junior heavyweight Dave Stanton was third in his weight class.

As a team, the Dukes placed second of 19 teams at the Eastern Regional tournament. Old Dominion was first, with JMU finishing ahead of Shippensburg, West Chester, Rutgers and defending champion Slippery Rock.

JMU placed a disappointing fourth in the state meet behind Virginia, Old Dominion and VMI, but the Dukes were encouraged by some individual performances. Freshman Tom Cummings won his semifinal match in overtime and pinned in the finals to win the state championship at 126 pounds. Sophomore Phil Rice and junior Gary Webb were runners-up at the 190- and 150-pound weight classes respectively. Bowyer placed third at 118 pounds, Thomas was third in the 177-pound weight class, and Stanton took third in the heavyweight division.

Gentile, who would have been a defending state champion, did not even travel to this season's state meet due to the flu, an illness that hindered his performance for several weeks afterward.

The Dukes suffered a heartbreaking loss at the state meet when junior Jack Fitzgerald, the number one seed at 167 pounds, dislocated his shoulder in the semifinals. He did not compete again all season.

A second setback for the Dukes came in the final match of a dual meet at Old Dominion. With the Monarchs leading 18-13 going into the final match — a feature match between 126-pounders Cummings and Neil Hanley — the Dukes had a chance to tie or win.

But, Cummings tore cartilage in his right knee and was forced to default the match. Three days later his knee was operated on, and Cummings finished his freshman season with a 20-10 record and a team-leading seven pins.

Gentile led the Dukes with a 29-6 record. He traveled to Nationals but lost his first round match and was forced to withdraw from the consolation round because of injury.

Other top JMU records were attained by Bowyer 23-13-1, Fitzgerald 21-9 and Rice 25-11-2.

Athletes, depending upon how they are performing, alternately love them and hate them. Coaches run the gamut from perfectionists to bumblers, from winners to losers. One thing you can be sure of is that they dedicate their coaching time and often their personal time to building winning athletes, teams and records. We salute the JMU coaches.

When U.S. News and World Report ranked JMU as the tenth best undergraduate, liberal arts college East of the Mississippi early in the school year, there were many signs of pride showing from everyone at JMU. The group of people with the happiest faces though were the administrators. They are the people who developed JMU's fine curriculum, made the right decisions along the way, and oversaw the whole process that led to this national recognition.

If the administrators had been asked in 1978 what goal JMU should aim for, the likely answer would have been to be the best university in Virginia. All that has changed and Dr. Carrier has the goal of making JMU the best under graduate university in the country. In order to meet that challenge, most of the administrators agree that even more growth needs to take place. Not necessarily growth in size but growth in the quality of the programs needs to be emphasized. Most of the administrators believe JMU's enrollment will not surpass 10,000 students, mainly due to the lack of space for extra sutdents and the additional money needed doesn't exist for such a change. So, in order to grow quality-wise, JMU will be concentrating on admitting a better prepared student as they have been doing in the past and developing each department to enhance the faculty and programs taught.

Since major growth doesn't occur instantly, it might take some time to notice a change, if any does occur. One thing is assured, if everyone has a positive attitude and makes an effort it will happen and the people that strive for that goal most of all are JMU's administrators.

Do you do it? I've been known to. Chances are that you do it too but just don't admit it in public.

Statistics indicate that 9.3 out of every 10 Americans will do it before the age of 14.

Compulsive people will do it approximately 10 minutes a day from the time they are two until the time they reach advanced middle-age. Theoretically, if a person begins dong it at the age of two and continues doing it once a day until the age of 75, that person will have done it 26,645 times for a total of 183 days.

You may think that this is a fairly new phenomenon accidently discovered be some obscure research team that was looking for "Youth in Asia." I hate to inform you, but recent evidence suggests that even our cave-dwelling predecessors did it in their spare time. Unlike us, however, they weren't blinded by conventionality and accepted the act for what it was — an indulgence in self-gratification.

In more recent times some very famous people have done it despite expressed public concern for the children's welfare. (That may be why they are so well-known.) Da Vinci did it and so did Michaelangelo. (It is a well-documented fact that he once did it on his back for three days until the Pope told him to stop in the name of decency.) John Riggins still does it every Sunday in the locker room.

Almost everybody does it sometime. Even students do it. You probably know someone who's doing it right this very minute. Don't worry though, it's not catching. People have even been known to do it during classes. You know that guy in the back row who's always smiling? He's doing it. So is the girl in the next row who is constantly writing in her notebook. I'd bet that your roommate is one who does it when your back is turned. Just when you thought you knew everything you ever cared to know about the person sharing your room, this comes up.

There are no distinguishing characteristics which give these people away who are doing it. So don't climb back into your closet and lock the door. Chances are, if you haven't been caught yet, you are extremely lucky, or else you have a good place to do it.

If you do do it, do it well. Just remember that not everybody can do it. Take comfort in the fact that you are able to do it and enjoy doing it. Don't worry about what other people think and, no, if you do it you won't go blind, and, contrary to popular opinion, you won't grow hair on your palms. So, if it feels good, go ahead and do it . . . doodle!

Getting Personal

License plates are no longer just a means of identifying our cars. Now, they can be a means of identifying our personalities.

For the past few years, Virginia drivers have had the opportunity to personalize their plates by choosing any six letters or numbers. The annual cost is ten dollars.

Since there can only be one of any combination of letters and numbers, these plates are not only personalized but also individualized.

Driving along, it's interesting to read the license plates (kind of like reading bumper stickers or counting cows). Most personalized plates consist of the driver's initials plus a number. Other people like to reveal a bit more about their personality — their hobbies, their occupations.

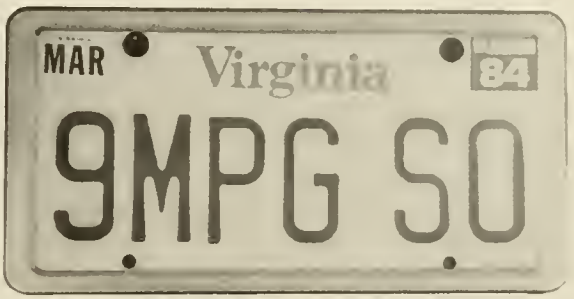

Other plates express greetings to fellow drivers. Messages like "HELLO" or "10SNE1" have become cliches. They can get more provocative.

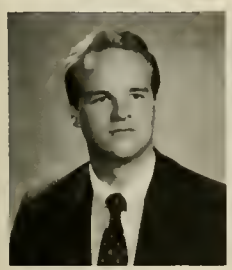

Still other plates reflect something about the car itself. These are especially prevalent on sports cars like 280-Z's whose plates read "ZULATR" or "ZZOOM". Old, beat up cars might say MINE or 'PAID 4'. Then, of course, there is the jeep that reads "EAT MUD".

There really seems to be a trend for these creative plates. In the future, regular DMV-issued plates may be the exception instead of the rule. It certainly would make driving more interesting — or would it just make it more dangerous?

Have you ever noticed just who parks in commuter parking lots?

I can tell you're an educated person. You're right! Commuters park in commuter parking lots but so do countless other various and sundry personages of questionable origin.

Undoubtedly this is just another administration-devised conspiracy to get even with the non-campus dwelling students who make up a meager 45% of JMU's total enrollment.

How many times have you gotten up a day early just so you could find a parking space near the JMU suburbs? And, when you get to the outer limits, how many commuters' cars have you seen with the infamous "R resident student" sticker? Apparently the higher authorities have a chosen few who are given this prestigious identification marker which provides them with immunity from the campus blood hounds in blue.

Turnabout is not always fair play, however. Try parking in a resident lot and see how many times you get ticketed before you cross the street. Resident students don't realize how well off they are.

Everyday, commuters are threatened with death just because they want to get a legal parking space.

You may think I'm exaggerating, but I'm not.

Desperate commuters have resorted to a deadly game for getting a parking space which closely resembles vultures searching for bunny cadavers.

Commuters sit waiting for an unsuspecting student who is about to leave. The vultures rev their engines and lower their goggles. The object of the game is to see who will be the first one in the unfortunate student's parking space.

(Note. Sequence of arrival at the scene does not matter. It's every communter for himself.)

Are there any solutions to this problem?

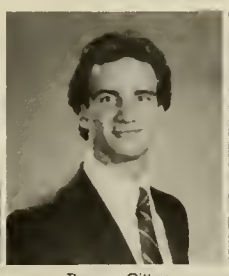

Probably . . . but we'll never know ■

STUDENTS SPEAK: JMU STUDENTS TO BE ARRESTED FOR READING ORIGINAL POETRY & FICTION

Voices of Verse

"Literature should be heard. The English language has a special power that I believe is worth hearing."

This is the philosophy behind the Poetry Reading Series, according to its organizer, Lisa Russ Spaar, English professor and poet.

Co-sponsored by the English Department and Madison Memorial Library, the series began this year in response to what Spaar described as a "latent interest" at JMU and in the community for this type of creative outlet.

Because of a low budget, most of the readers were drawn from JMU faculty members and local friends of Spaar. With more money the program could expand in the future to include known poets and fiction writers from all across the region.

"The writers are interested," said Spaar.

Along with the published poets, the series also gave students a chance to vent their poetic talents. These special readings were open to any student who had only to sign-up at the door and limit his or her reading to five minutes.

With 50 to 60 persons in attendance at each reading, the series "exceeded my expectations," said Spaar.

"There is a community of people starved for this — now they have it." ■

Cheers

Sam (Ted Danson) and Diane (Shelley Long).

Take a break from studying and step into a Boston bar where "everybody knows your name." This experience can be yours when you watch NBC's emmy award-winning show "Cheers," on Thursday nights.

Sam, Diane, Coach, Carla, and the rest of the gang are immensely popular on college campuses. In fact, according to Newsweek, "Cheers" bombed in its first season except on college campuses "where its characters and sophisticated humor struck a responsive chord."

The quality of "Cheers" has been compared to such comedy classics as "M*A*S*H" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Believable characters and crisp, literate dialogue are attributed to the show's success.

The show took a turn this season as Sam and Diane's relationship bloomed. Although the implied sexual relationship is something new, the quick insults and arguments haven't gone.

Most of us have visited bars, but it's nice to have a place where we can all be regulars. ■

All You Need Is Love . . . And a Little Time

"Your friendship can help a child." This philosophy belongs to the Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Harrisonburg-Rockingham County area.

This organization was formed to provide mature companionship for boys and girls who, for whatever reason, do not receive it at home. Many of these children come from single-parent homes, and others have parents who feel children need additional guidance and companionship.

This is where the Big Brothers/Big Sisters, many of whom are students at JMU, come in. In fact, consistently over one-third of all Big Brothers and Big Sisters are JMU students, according to Sandy Oberlin, area director.

The JMU students who participate in this program as "bigs" participants, have undergone a screening process and then a matching-up process. This procedure insures proper placement.

An example is Karen Thielhorn. A senior physical education major, Karen wanted an active child with whom she could share some of her athletic interests. She was matched up with a little sister in December '82 and is still with her.

The only requirements for becoming big brothers and sisters is the ability to spend several hours per week with a child for at least a year. Some people are not able to meet the individual requirements and responsibilities, so they participate through groups such as Campus Catholic Ministry, Circle K, and fraternities and sororities. These groups sponsor monthly activities such as parties and outings. Circle K sponsors an annual Halloween Party, while Hoffman Hall held a Popcorn and Movie Party for the children in the program last year.

This is what Big Brothers/Big Sisters is all about — helping children by providing someone to look up to, and JMU students are an important part of this.

Hot To Go

The infamous Four Star car. (Mitzelle)

Hot, melted mozzerella topped with tangy green peppers, spicy sausage, and delicate mushrooms on a thick, chewy crust. Sounds good, huh?

Right at their fingertips JMU students have some of the best pizza in town delivered to their doors at almost anytime of day or night.

Once upon a time Luigi's, known for its pizza and subs, was the only place that students could count on for midnight munchies. Last year, however, Four Star Pizza — easily recognized by its little red, white, and blue Escorts — called a halt to Luigis' pizza monopoly by offering free delivery.

Suddenly, you couldn't walk across campus without seeing a Four Star car.

Since that time there has been a bit of a pizza war with all pizza places offering coupons, and Luigi's starting its own delivery service. JM's and Fog Subs have also gotten into the battle with their steamy subs.

Just by looking around campus at all the empty Four Stor boxes and Four Star cars, it seems that Four Star is slightly ahead in the game. But you never know, tastes change. And tomorrow students might stop craving microwoved pizza and watery sodas and start getting yearnings for grease.

But whatever you choose, it's only a phone call away.

Killer Dynasty

Quarters, dice, 99 and drink pong, the regular old drinking games, seemed to be losing their fizz one Wednesday night, so some imaginative (and thirsty) students invented "Killer Dynasty."

Since they were going to watch the show anyway, why not watch it and drink!? To play, names of the main characters in the show are placed in a hat or on the bottom of a chair. The name you pick or the seat you choose determines which character you are. Everytime a character comes on the screen or his or her name is mentioned, the corresponding player drinks. Every drink started must be finished by the next commercial break.

There are other TV drinking games like "Hi Bob." This game is played while watching "The Bob Newhart Show" reruns. Everytime a character on the show says "Bob", all players take a drink; when someone says "Hi Bob", players take two drinks, if someone says "Oh Bob" (this is usually Emily's famous line) all players chug.

Some hard-up TV fans even play "Killer Rudolph" at Christmas time. The more Rudolph's nose lights up, the more lit up the players become!

Some professors may think that creativity is dead, but drinking games certainly prove them wrong. Or maybe it's just that where there's a will there's a way ■

The Electric Zoo herds its way through the cow tunnel. (Helms)

Making the Cow Connection

M00-0-0-0!

Does that sound familiar? No, it doesn't come from any Rockingham County pastures or from See and Say's "the cow says" it's the sound that can commonly be heard in the tunnel under I-81 that mysteriously joins the Convocation Center to the rest of the campus. Students just call this passage the cow tunnel.

There's a good reason for the name. According to popular belief, cows used to be transported through that tunnel to graze in the pastures where the Convocation Center now stands.

Maybe it is a little strange to walk through a smelly tunnel that constantly echos and roars with passing trucks overhead, but it does make us unique. Besides it adds something to the character of the Electric Zoo.

And when the basketball game ends, a few privileged fans get into their cars parked just 50 feet away, while the rest of us herd our way through the tunnel. And there's something about that tunnel that brings out the animal in us, as everyone seems to instinctively moo. No one ever told us to moo. It's just an unspoken "rule" — all "baaahs" are tossed out on their wooly little ears.

What! No Toilet Paper?

Our lives are governed by written and unwritten traditions. Most traditions are popularly held beliefs, widely accepted and met with little or no resistance.

This year at JMU, a student-originated tradition was challenged by the administration. The tradition is, of course, the throwing of toilet paper at home games after the Dukes sink the first basket.

Arguments made by the administration against this ritual included its expense, the danger to players and spectators of being struck during the awesome white barrage, and the tarnishing of the university's public image.

Students argue that this unwritten tradition harms no one. They claim that society encourages the young to make their mark on the world, and, to them, this is one harmless way to do it. They want to show people that the Electric Zoo is alive and well at JMU. It works. People recognize and respect JMU students' outward enthusiasm. Nobody is complaining, except the administration.

As a remedy to this pressing situation, the administration has offered purple and gold crepe paper as a substitute to fill the traditional role toilet paper has served in the past. Due to the limited choices, the decision has been accepted as a plausible solution to the problem.

Our society is based on tradition, and, as we have all learned, tradition changes. The Electric Zoo of JMU has learned to adapt to this phenomenon. It's not that we are losing a tradition; we are simply beginning a new tradition with the administration's support . . yeah, right.

When he was beaten in a five-mile race by a "68 year old man with a hangover," Jim Fixx knew he had to so something

What Fixx did was get in shape and write a best-selling book, The Complete Book of Running.

In a lecture to a Grafton-Stovall Theatre audience on April 13, 1983, Fixx spoke about the advantages of running and suggested some tips for runners. According to Fixx, runners can hold off aging and reduce the risk of heart attacks; three miles a day is the crucial distance to build up to in order to decrease heart attack risk by 64%. He also emphasized that running isn't necessarily the best sport, it is convenient though, because you can do it anywhere.

For the novice as well as the veteran runner, Fixx had a few suggestions. First, let running be fun. Go places you would like to be if you were walking, he avoids the monotony of tracks. Second, don't try to improve too fast, and try not to catch "marathon fever." Third, don't become obsessed with all the fads in running, there's a lot, too much, paraphernalia out there. Finally, "run, but don't let running run you."

By the way, have you ever wondered whose legs are on the cover of his books? They're his, Fixx admits with embarrassment, someone in the audience was "impolite enough to ask."

I've heard it time and time again. Professors are always jokingly remarking that one can always tell a student lot from a faculty lot — because the students have the better cars.

Well, I have to admit that I've seen my share of students cruising around in shiny, new Mercedes. But, to see if this is true, I decided to take a less than scientific survey of the cars in the parking lots and faculty lots. I surveyed 239 faculty cars in the Godwin lot, B-lot, M-lot, and C-lot, and 196 student cars in J-lot and P-lot.

Overall, the cars were pretty much the same. Sure, there were your token Z's, RX-7's, and Pugeots — but they were in both student and faculty lots. Faculty cars did tend to be bigger (remnants from days when gas was 60 cents a gallon), but students had their share of tanks too (usually hand-me-down station wagons). Trucks also appeared frequently in all lots, probably because they're comparably less expensive than most cars. After all, neither students nor teachers are known for having large checking accounts. ■

Convo Camp-In

Last Spring room sign-ups were held inside for the first time. Instead of students camping outside the Warren Campus Center, eager students camped inside the Convocation Center.

The location may have changed, but the atmosphere didn't. It was all one big pajama party with sleeping bags and even mattresses scattered around, radios and TV's going, frisbees flying in the arena, and Four Star Pizza boxes everywhere.

Girls started showing up as early as 12:30 pm Sunday to pick up numbers on Tuesday morning which they would then use to line up again Tuesday evening. As in the past, all it took was one person in line to create a panic.

Those first people to line up were Marlene Lyon, Kristi Davidson, and Michele Belcher, all freshmen. These students were residents of Eagle Hall who, according to them, lined up so early because they "wanted to live on campus." They were trying to get into Logan or Wayland — they got into Presidential Apartments.

Most "campers" agreed that having people line up inside the Convocation Center was a big improvement over the former system. But despite the added comfort, there were still some complaints. Dawn Jarrell, a sophomore hoping for Logan Hall, thought that the Convocation Center was too far away and that the rules enforced by attending RA's were too strict.

Oh well, you can't please everyone. For now, this is the best system the powers that be have devised. But with the Orwellian year in our midst, anything's possible in the future.

JMU's First Journal

In recent years, the accomplishments of various academic departments have given JMU widespread recognition.

The Center for Accounting Research, located in the Accounting Department of the School of Business, has made JMU a recognizable force in the field of accounting education with its publication of the Journal for Accounting Education. The journal is the first of its kind dealing with accounting education.

According to Professor Ralph L. Benke, Jr., editor and founder of the journal, "the Journal for Accounting Education has given JMU national and international exposure."

According to its statement of policy, the journal is "dedicated to promoting excellence in teaching and stimulating research in accounting education."

Since its debut in March 1983, the journal has acquired more than 1000 subscribers in more than 30 countries.

"See and hear your favorite music 24 hours a day!"

MTV, Music Television, offers videos of your favorite groups on coble television all across America Billed as the "World's First Video Music Station" — no false advertising here — MTV specializes in bringing videos of well-known groups to TV as well as giving airplay to new bonds that otherwise could not crack the play lists of radio stations.

There are similar programs that feature music videos such as Home Box Office's "Video Jukebox" and some other regional programs, but videos are only a sideline for those stations. MTV is the only program devoted solely to continuous video music

MTV, like radio stotions, utilizes disc jockeys known as video jockeys (VJ's for short) who speel off the latest music news and trends, in the words of the valley (And we don't mean the Shenandoah Valley.)

MTV has proved so successful that the BBC of Great Britain has proposed a similar all-video channel for its music-conscious viewers. MTV's notoriety has also become apparent in the younger generation with parents proclaiming the station off-limits to their children becouse of obscenity and possible anti-religious offerings. In fact, Harrisonburg had MTV for less than one day before the station was taken off the air due to the massive number of objections.

With MTV's growing popularity, we're bound to see the idea spread Even now video cassettes of groups can be bought, and Michael Jackson has produced videos to be shown in theatres before movies.

The rock rolls on — but now with even more technology ■

JMU Jargon: a Glossary

Here is the first JMU Atlas and Glossary of Duke's Terminology" (Attention illiterates and business majors, they're not in alphabetical order.)

Uncle Ron — A pseudonym for James Madison University President Ronald E. Carrier. Constantly denies allegations that he is the reincarnation of Fred Flintstone. Says naming his son Dino is merely a coincidence. Was recently seen at local restaurant getting a take-out order of ribs — which tipped his car over.

Faculty Advisers — A secret society. Because no one has actually seen one, their activities are virtually unknown.

Wilson Cupola — You know — that white thing on top of Wilson Hall.

Campus Police — Carry

Wine Price Hall — "Where Hamlet told Ophelia to go." (Hamlet)

.357 magnums in order to give out parking tickets. Have all seen the movie "Patton" at least a dozen times. Hill Street Blues they are not.

ROTC — They're the ones wearing olive drab on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Have all seen the movie "Patton" at least a dozen times. They think "Your mother wears army boots" is a compliment. Not to be confused with campus police SWAT team.

Commuter Student Parking — You must be kidding (See also Campus Police).

Wine-Price Hall — A dorm for women. Also known as "The Nunnery," or "Virgin Vault." Where Hamlet told Ophelia to go.

Newman Lake — An open sewer for Greek Row. Also the site of alleged heavy-water experiments by the chemistry department. (In other words, don't go fishing.) The men's basketball team's offense is said to be located somewhere at the bottom of Newman Lake.

Greeks — Remember the song "The Greeks Don't Want No Freaks?" Well, our Greeks are freaks. Just look at their clothes. They're the ones who wear sportcoats and ties with Khaki shorts to football games. (See also Young Republicans).

Young Republicans — Also known as "Young Americons for Freedom." They like to ottend Sunday night movies in Grafton-Stovall because they enjoy seeing everything in black and white. They think Nixon wasn't such a bad guy. Have all seen the movie "Patton" at least a dozen times.

Young Democrats — A campus organization which leads in the effort to have the Convocation Center named after Chuck Robb. They think that Fritz Mondale is the Second Coming.

SGA — Students Groping Against Apathy — Also known as the Student Government Association.

Humorist Manifesto — Last year's Campus Lampoon that made Hustler magazine look like The National Review.

The Breeze — The student-run campus newspaper. A great place to find out who was arrested after last week's keg party.

Bell's Neighbor

During the past year, JMU saw its newest addition, McGraw-Long Hall, emerge from the ground next to Bell Hall. For the exchange of a mere two million dollars, the Nielson Construction Co. started building the new dorm in August 1983. The dorm is scheduled to begin housing students for the 1983-84 school year

Since the late 1970's, there has been a housing shortage due to a high demand by students to live on campus. The new dorm was built to help alleviate this situation. McGraw-Long Hall will allow 210 more students to live on campus as opposed to Howard Johnson's.

McGraw-Long Hall is just another sign of a growing, thriving institution ■

The First Step

By now freshmen are seasoned veterans of JMU. They have mastered the art of standing in line, they've adjusted their diets to chicken parmesan every other night in D-Hall, and the soreness in their legs from climbing hills has passed. They haven't mastered registration yet — but even the people who run registration haven't mastered it yet. Anyway, with two semesters under their belts freshman can now look back fondly to that first week of their college careers when there were plenty of "misery loves company" activities.

Remember when you first got here? You and your family tried to forget that you weren't going back with them in the ol' station wagon. The station wagon, by the way, is jam-packed with all your worldly possessions, so you start unpacking and hauling it all up the stairs to your bare room. When the car was finally empty, Mom and Dad went back home. You promised to write.

Then the fun began. The campus was empty because all freshmen had to arrive a few days early to orientate themselves. Dry parties were offered as a way for freshmen to meet each other. One of the larger gatherings was the watermelon feast held on the practice field next to Godwin. Friendly smiles and sticky, wet faces hid any anxiety over the next few days, and the next four years.

Making friends at freshmen mixer. (Helms)

Before classes started there were fees to be paid and books to be bought. Many freshmen had their books pre-packaged to avoid confusion. Later they learned that books could be acquired much more cheaply elsewhere — if you were willing to stand in line.

Those innocent days are over now. The traditionally derogatory term "freshmen" doesn't really apply anymore. We're all just JMU students. But looking back is still fun — like looking back at our baby pictures. ■

The BLUESTONE Staff

BLUESTONE

Yearbook deadlines are pretty frantic periods of time. Everything that has been developed over weeks of work begins to come together and the editors begin to meld it all into a cohesive unit that is the yearbook. This melding process usually involves several all-nighters. It involves a mountain of copy to be edited and another mountain of layouts to be drawn. It involves Section Editors screaming at Photographers, Photographers screaming at Section Editors, and everyone screaming at the Staff. But in the end, all the work pulls together to form a cohesive, quality product — we hope.

This, then, is what goes into publishing the BLUESTONE. The 1983-1984 edition is an innovative volume. We have tried some things that have never been done to a JMU yearbook. We hope you are pleased by the result. ■

Ecumenical Groups

Three religious organizations are centered in their own houses off-campus. The Campus Catholic Ministry, The Baptist Student Union, and The Wesley Foundation provide students with many opportunities to enrich their spiritual lives. The three groups sponsor social activities designed to help a student grow spiritually and also to spread the Gospel of Jesus. To others on campus and in the community, CCM offers Ecumenical Masses on campus. It also sponsors intramural programs, weekly scripture sharing, and several retreats a year.

The Wesley Foundation reaches out to the community in several ways. One of these is The New Life Singers, who perform at various local churches and during occasional weekend tours. The United Methodist Student Center offers a chapel, game room, library, and study lounge to all students.

These three groups are just a few of the many on campus who provide students with a chance to better understand the Gospel of Christ and also to better understand themselves and those around them.

SHOOT-OFF

Joe Fox

The Making of a Tradition...

HOW did we pull it off. Whaddaya mean these light bulbs aren't bright enough?? --OK, get some from TV Prod. Damn they're HOT. Please Lord don't let some klutz put a hole through my beautiful white backdrop. WHY ARE WE DOING THIS!!? I don't even know where we can fit these pictures in the book. Oh yeah, we need photographers. Em, wanna have some fun? Gary--want to blow off all your classes and take pictures of 50 million people in one afternoon? Great!

...I knew we'd be disorganized. We need some people, GET SOME PEOPLE!! Anybody that looks FUN! --And on we went with the first annual Shoot-Off...

So the lighting may not be perfect.
So we WERE totally disorganized and got started an hour late.
So what if some Klutz did put a hole through my prized white backdrop.
We were able to capture JMU's most unique quality-- the PEOPLE.

Thanks for the help everybody- Paul,Kim,Liz,Tracey,Leslie,Karen etc. Good idea Mike. Thanks for the pics Gary, I know your knees will never be the same...

The year saw continuing change for James Madison University. The change was marked with events that left a permanent mark on JMU.

The construction continued. With construction of the new Hillside dorm McGraw-Long, Howard Johnson's will cease functioning as a dormitory. Also under construction was the new student meeting and conference building, the Adolf H. Phillips' Center. Expansion of Greek Housing was a controversial issue throughout the year. The administration dropped its original proposal of relocating the Greeks across Interstate 81 in favor of adding to existing housing. Also in the planning stages was a new Fine Arts Building for which JMU received 7.6 million.

Traditions came and went. The most controversial was the change in the graduation format. In January, the Faculty Senate voted to eliminate the traditional handshake and awarding of individual diplomas in an effort to shorten the graduation exercises. A relatively new tradition abolished was the toilet paper throwing at basketball games after the first JMU basket. The administration deemed the practice unsafe and issued streamer rolls to replace the toilet paper "missiles".

As a result of SGA action, another Christmas tree was placed on the Quad in front of Wilson Hall, signifying the start of a new tradition.

The beginning of the year was a headache for most Greeks when Virginia's minimum drinking age was raised to 19. The ABC also abolished open ticket parties, and Greeks were forced to fund parties internally.

In addition to being remembered for the expansion, tradition changes and Greek issues, the year would be remembered as the year that JMU almost beat the University of Virginia in football, losing 21-14. It was the year Harrisonburg Police arrested 44 people for swimming in Bett's Quarry on the outskirts of the city, and arresting 16 people for using the path between Howard Johnson's and Squire Hill. It would also be remembered as the year of "The Day After," the shocking portrayal of a nuclear holocaust.

Faculty achieved recognition in various ways. At Founder's Day ceremonies, various faculty members were honored for their outstanding service and achievement. Kevin Miller of the Accounting and Finance Department was elected to the State Senate. Federal Judge Ted Dalton received JMU's Commonwealth Award for outstanding public service through government work.

With the new year came the prospect of JMU losing its beloved President Carrier to the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville. But to the relief of many, "Uncle Ron" declined the position to remain as president of JMU.

Sue Manelski, a member of the Women's Basketball Team, was the third JMU player ever to score 1000 career points.

Getting low at Winterfest (Helms)

A new school record set when 6 JMU archers made the 1983 National Archery Association All-America Team.

1984 is also the sixth consecutive year that a JMU debate team has qualified to compete in the National Debate Tournament.

In March, the push for the strengthening of the Honor Code was highly publicized and with it came policies for stricter Honor Violation Penalties.

Looking Back, the 1983-84 school year was a time of change, development, and growth for JMU.
